DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of Species I in the reply filed on August 20, 2007 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that "the Examiner in no way complies with the serious burden on to establish a prima facie restriction requirement" and "the application, as claimed, does not raise to the level of restriction. For example, species I, II and V all relate to software site licensing".

This is not found persuasive because each Group teaches different embodiments of the invention. Each embodiment is independent and distinct and requires a separate search strategy. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

2. Claims 10-35 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on August 20, 2007.

3. Claims 1-35 are pending.

4. Claims 1-9 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
7. Claim 1 recites "a virtual warehouse website comprising a personal inventory of intangible items for said client site including a plurality of licensable components purchased for said target hardware device"; however, the claim does not show any licensable components being purchased.
8. Claim 1 recites "a client site having a target hardware device"; does the client have the device or device identification? Please clarify.
9. Claim 7 recites "said license sales site establishes said virtual warehouse"; however, it is unclear how this is implemented. Please clarify.
10. Claims 2- 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph as it depends on claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

11. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

12. Claims 1-3, 7, and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S.

Publication No. 2002/0049679 to Russell et al. ("Russell").

Referring to claim 1, Russell discloses a client site having a target hardware device (i.e. user-network enabled device), see paragraphs [0009] & [0049]), a virtual warehouse website (i.e. protected database) comprising a personal inventory of intangible items for said client site including a plurality of licensable components purchased for said target hardware device (see paragraphs [0011] & [0031]), a license sales site (i.e. network operations center/license generator) placing said intangible items in said virtual warehouse for said target hardware device (see paragraphs [0047] & [0045]) and a programming workstation (i.e. media player) receiving said software site license from said virtual warehouse for said target device (see paragraphs [0012] & [0014]).

Referring to claim 2, Russell discloses the system wherein said programming workstation receives an electronic file transfer comprising said license (see paragraph [0026]).

Referring to claim 3, Russell discloses the system wherein said programming workstation stores a copy of said site license (see claim 28).

Referring to claim 7, Russell discloses the system wherein said license sales site receives a purchase order from said client site comprising said target hardware device in response to said order, said license sales site establishes said virtual warehouse for said client site and places said licensable components for said target hardware device in said virtual warehouse (see claim 1 above).

Referring to claim 9, Russell discloses a representative of said client site (i.e. user) and a purchase order prepared by said representative and received at said license sales site, said order comprising said target hardware device, said representative having said programming workstation and installing said license to said target sales device prior to delivering said target to said client site (see claim 1 above).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

13. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

14. Claims 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Russell as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of U.S. Patent No. 7209902 to Stefik et al.

("Stefik").

Russell discloses a virtual warehouse and performing integrity check (see claim 1 above and paragraph [0063]). Russell does not expressly disclose the system wherein said virtual warehouse comprises a multi-password protected website comprising entry of a password unique to said client site and an ID unique to said target hardware device or comprising a priority level of access to said virtual warehouse. Stefik discloses the system wherein said virtual warehouse comprises a multi-password protected website comprising entry of a password unique to said client site and an ID unique to said target hardware device or comprising a priority level of access to said virtual warehouse (see claims 1 and 22). At the time the invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify the system disclose by Russell to include a virtual warehouse comprises a multi-password protected website comprising entry of a password unique to said client site and an ID unique to said target hardware device and a priority level of access to said virtual warehouse. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this because it prevents unauthorized individuals from accessing the system.

15. Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Russell as applied to claim 1 above.

Referring to claim 6, Russell discloses wherein said programming workstation displays said licensable components (See claim 1 above). Russell does not expressly teach displaying for confirmation from a user prior to said license sales site generating said software site license. However, this is an intended use feature and the Examiner notes that the workstation of Russell is capable of performing the process. "A recitation directed to the manner in which a claimed apparatus is intended to be used does not distinguish the claimed apparatus from the prior art, if the prior art has the capability to so perform" (see MPEP 2114 and Ex parte Masham,"2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987)). At the time the invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify the system disclose by Russell to display said licensable components for confirmation from a user prior to said license sales site generating said software site license. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this because it ensures that the user wants to purchase a particular license.

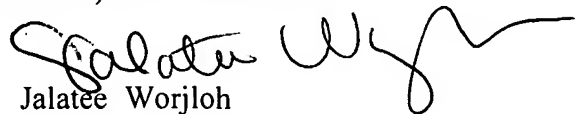

Note. Functional recitation(s) using the word "for" or other functional language (e.g. "able to", "whereby") have been considered but are given little patentable weight because they fail to add any structural limitations and are thereby regarded as intended use language. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed product must result in a structural difference between the claimed product and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed product from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it reads on the claimed limitation. In re Casey, 370 F.2d 576, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) (“The manner or method in which such machine is to be utilized is not germane to the issue of patentability of the machine itself.”); In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). See also MPEP §§ 2114 and 2115. Unless expressly noted otherwise by the Examiner, the claim interpretation principles in this paragraph apply to all examined claims currently pending.
